Introduction to Attainable Housing Strategies
About the Attainable Housing Strategies Initiative
About Attainable Housing Strategies

• Attainable Housing Strategies is an initiative the Planning Department will oversee through a planning process that will evaluate and potentially refine various proposals to spur the development of more diverse types of housing, including Missing Middle Housing, in Montgomery County.

• The initiative is the result of a County Council request for the Planning Board to consider and recommend “zoning reforms that would allow greater opportunities for Missing Middle housing in Montgomery County.”
About Attainable Housing Strategies

• The Attainable Housing Strategies initiative aims to identify viable options for existing and new residents to find homes at the right sizes, locations, and price points for their needs and expand homeownership opportunities for the county’s diverse populations.

• It also helps Montgomery County grow its housing supply even where space is a concern—a critical consideration as we anticipate population growth in the coming decades.
The Ask of Attainable Housing Strategies

• How can we diversify and expand housing options in Montgomery County?

• Will require that we reassess our longstanding patterns of residential development.
  • Will be looking at neighborhoods zoned exclusively for single-family homes.
  • Will review our ability to densify our corridors with more diverse infill housing.

• This will include reviewing existing single-family zone standards, including the usable area, size, setbacks, height, density, and parking requirements, as well as the process for development review and approval.
More Equitable and Inclusive Housing

• At the root of this effort is a desire to make housing in Montgomery County more equitable and more inclusive.

• To have more diverse housing options to meet the needs of an increasingly diverse county and to have neighborhoods with more racial, ethnic and economic diversity.

There will always be a market for detached homes and exclusively detached neighborhoods, but an inclusive housing policy must allow for diverse housing products within those neighborhoods, which will result in more diverse schools and communities.

Attainable Housing and Equity

- Deep disparities in wealth and homeownership were shaped by a legacy of discriminatory lending practices, restrictive covenants and single-family zoning and its impacts on neighborhoods still being felt today.

- Making homeownership more attainable is one step that can begin the process of addressing historical inequities to create more equitable, mixed-income neighborhoods.

What is Attainable Housing?
What is Attainable Housing?

- Attainable Housing is unsubsidized market rate housing that is appropriate and suitable for the households that live here.
- Attainable housing is not income-restricted housing.
- Generally, will be more affordable than the typical new detached single-family home due to its smaller size and smaller lot sizes.
- Implicit in this idea of attainability is that a range of housing options (type, size, tenure, cost) exists in the local market for a range of household incomes and preferences.
- Attainable Housing includes, but is not limited to, Missing Middle Housing.
What is Missing Middle housing?

• “Missing Middle” housing refers to a range of building types that are compatible in scale, form and construction with single-family homes, but include multiple housing units.

• Typically, “house-scale” units like smaller townhouses, duplexes, triplexes, quadruplexes, detached courtyard cottages, attached courtyard apartments, or smaller apartment buildings that are typically in walkable, transit-accessible neighborhoods.

Why do we need zoning changes?

• Generally speaking, many of the existing Missing Middle housing structures could not be built under the current standards in single-family zones.

• Many of the single-family zones in Montgomery County do allow for some types of Missing Middle housing, namely duplexes and townhouses, but there are additional requirements to build Missing Middle types in the single-family zones. These additional requirements include:

  • Process (site plan)
  • Affordable Housing Requirements (MDPUs)
  • Usable Area Requirements
Why Attainable Housing is Important

- Diverse needs in terms of housing
- Accessible homeownership
- Housing shortage/Affordable Housing Crisis
- Environmental Benefits/Compact Form
- Legacy of single-family zoning
